Whom we share your data with

The personal data that we process will not be shared with any third parties that isn't a trusted supplier, except for the personal data included in the recordings of our events or presentations. Our recordings from events and presentations will be publically available to stream online. We may also share your personal data with paramedics in a case of emergency as explained above.

Personal data transfer to third countries (i.e. outside of EU/EEA)

We always strive to process your personal data within the EU/EEA so you can feel secure that your data is adequately protected. However, your personal data may, whenever it is deemed necessary for the purposes set above, be transferred to and processed by a supplier (data processor) in a third country. We will in such case always ensure that your personal data is protected, e.g. by entering data protection agreements that require data processors and sub-processors to protect the data in the same way as we do and by implementing adequate supplementary safeguards.

Your rights as a data subject

- a) Right to access
You have the right to know if we are processing your personal data and in such case get information about what personal data we are processing about you.
- b) Right to rectification
If you find any of your personal data subjected to our processing to be incorrect or incomplete, you have the right to request amendment or supplementation of that personal data.
- c) Right to erasure
You have the right to have your personal data deleted. However, this is not applicable in certain cases, e.g. if the retention of the personal data is mandatory to fulfil legal obligations or if we are relying our processing on legitimate interest and we have compelling justification for the processing.
- d) Right to limitation of data processing
Under certain conditions, you have the right to limit our processing of your personal data to certain selected purposes or restrict our processing during a limited time period.
- e) Right to data portability
You have the right to obtain your personal data in a structured way or request it to be sent to a third party. However, this right is limited to the personal data that you have provided us yourself and which we are processing on the basis of your consent or our contractual relationship.
- f) Right to object
You can object to further processing of your personal data. However, this is not applicable in certain cases, e.g. if we can demonstrate compelling legitimate reasons for the processing that override the individual's interests, rights and freedoms or if the processing is carried out in order to establish, exercise or defend against legal claims. You always have the right to object whenever our data processing is based on you given consent or whenever your personal data is being used for direct marketing purposes.
- g) Right to lodge a complaint
If you are dissatisfied with our data processing, you may lodge a complaint to the supervisory authority (see contact details below).

More about legitimate interest as our legal basis

We always carry out legitimate interest assessments in relation to the processing activities that are rested on this legal basis. Such assessment include a necessity evaluation and a weighing of your interests against ours. We have concluded that our interests in processing your personal data for the purposes as specified above takes precedence over your potential interests in protecting your personal privacy, on the basis of the benefits that these events and presentations can provide in increasing transparency and in preventing market abuse.
